GUGGENHEIM IS INTERVIEWED

SAYS REVOLT WOULD SOON BE SQUELCHED

EXPLAINS HIS POINT OF VIEW

Declares Legislators Will Vote for Him Because They Are Under Obligations for Money Advanced in the Campaign

Ridgway's Weekly which has published simultaneously in fourteen cities in all parts of the country appeared yesterday with a ... with Simon Guggenheim ... the smelter trust magnate tells how he ... the Colorado senatorship. According to the interviewer Frederick Lawrence of New York ... member of Ridgway's staff, Guggenheim told him that the ... of the legislature would vote for him because they ... obligation to him

SIMON GUGGENHEIM

... the moneys he put up in the campaign.

The interview is as follows:

(Frederick Lawrence in Ridgway's Magazine for January.)

Simon Guggenheim, the smelter man, seeking to become Simon Guggenheim, senator, naturally resorted to melting methods to achieve his aspiration. Simon Guggenheim of the smelter trust throws ore into his furnaces and smelts out gold and silver. So, when he concluded that a seat in the United States senate was necessary to his happiness, he threw into the political furnace enough golden ore to smelt out the votes he needed.

The political furnace swallowed approximately $500,000. The result was highly satisfactory. He chose sixty-four members of the Colorado legislature pledged to vote for him for United States senator. They came high but he had to have them. MR. GUGGENHEIM ADMITTED TO ME DURING THE COURSE OF THE CONVERSATION I HAD WITH HIM THAT HE HAD BOUGHT AND PAID FOR HIS VOTES AND ADDED THAT HE EXPECTED THEM TO BE DELIVERED WITHOUT BEING CALLED UPON TO MAKE FURTHER PAYMENT.

Boasts That He Bought It

He went further and said he KNEW they would be delivered. MR. GUGGENHEIM MADE THIS ASSERTION WITHOUT BLUSHING. HE DID NOT SEEM TO REALIZE THAT, MORALLY IF NOT LEGALLY, IT IS BRIBERY TO BUY VOTES FOR A UNITED STATES SENATORSHIP IN ADVANCE. Hard as I labored with the young man I ... make him see the error of his way; he remained of the same opinion to the end.

Now is not that a pretty state of affairs? A trust man, head of a trust which is one of the most oppressive in ... that he has bought a United States senatorship and that he expects the goods to be delivered. WHERE ELSE THAN IN COLORADO ... COULD THESE THINGS HAPPEN WITHOUT AROUSING A STORM OF POPULAR INDIGNATION THAT WOULD DESTROY GUGGENHEIM AND HIS ... IN ADVANCE ... IN THE LEGISLATURE. These things are ... talked ... among ... they are printed in newspapers ... senatorship is ... trust millionaire under ...

... He ... the exalted position ... from the people against ... The conscience of citizens ... deadened ...

A Little Man Physically and Mentally

... must ... Washington.

We discussed ... and he talked ... as though we were ... simple transaction in business.

"It is stated, Mr. Guggenheim ... that ... language" you have bought your election; that you have paid into the campaign fund to meet members of the legislature the amount of their expenses. Does it not seem to you wrong to use money with the understanding that in consideration of it you are to receive the vote of the man in whose interest it is spent?"

They're Under Obligations to Me

"There is nothing wrong about ... Mr. Guggenheim ... campaigns as they are conducted in these days. The money I have contributed has helped to elect these men and naturally they feel under obligation to vote for me. It is done all over the United States today. I do not consider that it is wrong and neither do I think that it can in any sense be called bribery."

"Do you think," I asked, "that these men would vote for you if you had not paid their expenses? Do you think that you could be elected if you were a poor man?"

"I would have the same chance of being elected that any other poor man would have," was Mr. Guggenheim's answer. "Because I am wealthy and because I have contributed to Republican campaign funds I have more prominence than I would have had had I been poor. I suppose if I had been a poor man I would not have stood as good a chance to be elected as my wealth gave me."

Confident There Will Be No Revolt

"Is there any probability that some members of the legislature may form a combination, as has been done in other states, to force you to make further advances?"

Mr. Guggenheim smiled brightly and with an air of absolute certainty in the strength of his position made answer:

"There is no danger of it, and ... it would not succeed if there was. Mind you I will be elected. Make no mistake about that."

All this conversation about the purchase of the senatorship did not ruffle Mr. Guggenheim's composure in the slightest. This may have been due to the fact that I had prepared him for what I was going to say by stating to him at the beginning that I was going to talk very plainly and would touch upon a very disagreeable subject. To this Mr. Guggenheim assented with a wave of his hand and gave me permission to ask him any question I might see fit to put. We talked about the election of senators by the people. On this subject I epitomize what Mr. Guggenheim said:

"I think the people are electing United States senators. Before the election the issue was plainly fought out. It was Guggenheim against Patterson, and Guggenheim won. The people knew that Patterson and myself were the issues and that a vote for the Republican legislative candidates was a vote for me."

"But," I said, "don't you think it would be better if the people could have had an opportunity to vote either for or against you directly, and not in a manner that compelled them to consider other matters at the same time?"

"No," replied Mr. Guggenheim. "It is the mandate of the people that the legislature shall elect me just as much as though the vote had been direct."

"I have met many men who think that if you had been before the people in a manner calling for their vote upon you you could not have been elected."

The "People" Want Him, Ha! Ha!

With a laugh Mr. Guggenheim replied that he believed he would have carried the state by a larger vote than was given to his legislative candidates. Again I told him I differed with him.

"If you had been before the people I said your opponents would have raised the issue that you were a trust man, head of the smelter trust, and I believe they would have defeated you."

This seemed to touch Mr. Guggenheim on the raw. The smile faded from his face and he spoke very earnestly:

"No, Mr. Lawrence, you are wrong," he said. "There are different kinds of trusts. Some are good and some are bad. The smelter trust is one of the good ones. We treat our employes well, we deal fairly by the people. The smelter trust is not hated like the Standard Oil and some others because it does not practice oppressive methods. Aside from that, when I take my seat in the senate, I will not be a smelter trust nor any other kind of trust man. I intend to divorce myself entirely from business and give up twelve months in each year toward advancing the interests of the state of Colorado and the United States."

"The people," I said, "have had no opportunity to judge of your qualifications for the senatorship by any public act of yours because you have not held any public office. Do you think that by experience, study and knowledge of statesmanship you are the proper man for this position?"

"The people will have to judge me by my acts after I am elected," replied Mr. Guggenheim, "although I think my private and business career will indicate that I will do my full duty."

A Trust Man at Heart

In order to test Mr. Guggenheim upon his statement that he will not represent trusts but will favor measures beneficial to the country, I asked him if he approved President Roosevelt's course. Quickly he answered that he did. Then I asked this question:

"Would you have voted for President Roosevelt's rate bill if you had been a senator last year?"

Right here Mr. Guggenheim the friend of the people disappeared and Simon the smelter trust man showed himself in his true colors as a trust man—no more, no less. He did not answer the question. He would not answer it. No one but a trust man could have failed to answer that question one way or the other, and Mr. Guggenheim's failure to do so is a positive indication that he will not support President Roosevelt's fight against trusts when he takes his purchased seat.

Makeup of House Committees

Though there has been much discussion regarding the probable makeup of the committees to be named for the house, little information has yet leaked out. Representative H. C. Watson of Weld will likely be chairman of the committee on appropriations but all other guesses are made without foundation. Representative Carroll of Denver, who was presumed to be slated for a good committee owing to his prominence in the organization, will be content with a place on the ... committee and may not be prominent on any other. Representative D... of ... Pass has been spoken of for some of the good things but seems to be likely to get little.

Speaker Breckenridge and Representative Watson put in most of today working on what is known as the short appropriation bill. It is designed to carry the state over the interim between the close of the fiscal year on November 30 and the final passage of the general appropriation bill at the close of the legislative session. This bill will be completed Monday and presented the first thing Tuesday morning.

PUBLIC LAND FRAUD TRIAL

Fifteen Thousand Acres of Public Domain Illegally Filed Upon by Modisett Brothers

OMAHA, Neb., Jan. 4.—The introduction of testimony began today in the trial of the Modisett brothers and their alleged co-conspirators before Judge Munger in the United States district court. Fifteen thousand acres of the public domain are said to have been illegally filed upon through the efforts of the defendants and included by them with 25,000 acres more grazing land of western Nebraska.

Among today's witnesses for the state were two Sioux Indians who were educated at Carlisle Institute. One of these, Nicholas Ruleau of Pine Ridge, created a sensation by emphatically denying the authenticity of his signature to a lease to the land on which he filed. Ruleau testified that he made a filing at Rushville at the solicitation of W. C. Smoot, formerly government farmer at the Pine Ridge agency. For this he said he received $25 from Frank Young who he understood got the money from the Modisetts. Ruleau said he told Miss Stewart, the district clerk, that he did not understand the papers he was signing but she paid no attention to this.

We solemnly protest against it."

FENCES MUST GO

PUBLIC LAND INCLOSURES TO COME DOWN.

BY DIRECTION OF PRESIDENT

HITCHCOCK ISSUES ORDER TO GENERAL LAND OFFICE

OF INTEREST TO STOCKMEN

Act of February 25, 1885, to Be Rigidly Enforced After April 1—If Fences Are Not Removed by That Date, They Will Be Torn Down

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—By direction of the president, Secretary Hitchcock today issued an order to Commissioner Richards of the general land office at once to notify all special agents and receivers and registers of local land offices that the act of February 25, 1885, for the summary destruction of illegal inclosures and obstructions existing on public lands will be rigidly enforced after April 1, 1907.

This order means that ... fences inclosing public lands in violation of law must be removed before April 1. If they are not taken down by that time they will be torn down by representatives of the government.

Secretary Hitchcock's order has the approval of President Roosevelt. Strong pressure has been brought to permit the fences to remain on public lands even in the face of complaints.

After the president and the secretary had conferred regarding the order the former sent a letter to Mr. Hitchcock, in which he said:

President Approves Circular

"In response to your letter and in carrying out what after our conversation together seems to be the best course, I approve the circular you intend to issue with the modification of having it apply to all cases and of taking effect April 1 next. I trust that the senators and representatives from the great grazing states will realize that this means that if there is to be a modification of the law by which it would be possible to allow ... the temporary inclosure of portions of the public domain for grazing purposes on such conditions as the government finds compatible with the best interests of the actual settlers, then that this change in the law must be made at this session. Year in and year out you and I have been besought by men interested in the stock growing to permit the fences to stay up for another six months or another year on the ground that great damage is certain to be done by the taking of them down. Many of the men making these requests are entirely honest men whose request it would be in the interest of the community to grant were it legally possible to do so, but it is quite impossible permanently to permit such an arrangement.

To Enforce Faulty Law

"There must be some adequate provision of law if there is to be any satisfactory solution of this problem, and in default of this provision the present faulty law must be enforced. You are perfectly at liberty to show this letter to any and all senators whose constituents are chiefly concerned in this matter."

JIM FLYNN WINS DECISION

Defeats Jack Sullivan in a Fierce Twenty-Round Go at Los Angeles.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 4.—Jim Flynn of Pueblo, won a decision from Jack (Twin) Sullivan of Boston, before the Pacific Athletic club here tonight, after twenty as terrific rounds as have ever been seen in a local prize ring. No such vicious fighting by men of their weight has been seen here before. Flynn won the decision on his aggressiveness and terrible punching and on his ability to take punishment.

Sullivan's cleverness saved him many times throughout the fight and he undoubtedly outpointed Flynn.

Time and again Sullivan was seen to strike Flynn with his elbow and butt him with his head, and the crowd rose to their feet in protest many times. Neither man was knocked down during the fight, but both took a world of punishment.

BIG MINE SWINDLER CAUGHT

K. C. Flower, Alias C. G. Dalney Wanted on Charge of Grand Larceny, Captured in Philadelphia.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 4.—K. C. Flower, alias C. G. Dalney, who has been a fugitive from New York since 1903, where he is wanted to answer charges of grand larceny and swindling credulous investors out of about $1,000,000 in alleged bogus mining operations, was arrested here today.

Flower, who the detectives say is the most colossal mine swindler of the age, was captured in a big office building, where he has been located for some time. Under the name of Prof. Oxford, he was seeking, according to the police, to secure money from investors by representing that he had a wonderful chemical process whereby he could make diamonds and other precious stones and a patent brick.

The arrest of Flower ends a chase through Mexico, Central America, South America and Canada, besides many points in the United States. Following his operations in New York, through which it is alleged many society women lost money, Flower jumped a $20,000 bond after indictment in May 1903.

DEADWOOD, S. D., Jan. 4.—Work was resumed in the reliance Gold Mining company's mill today, the strikers having returned upon the company's promise to grant an eight-hour day.

INDIFFERENCE OF EMPLOYES

Disregard of Interest of Employers Alarming—President Santa Fe Road Talks.

CHICAGO, Jan. 4.—"One of the most serious conditions which the country is facing today, is the indifference and disregard which the employe has for the interests of the employer."

This statement was made today by E. P. Ripley, president of the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe in telling of the reasons which had led his company to establish a pension system affecting nearly 30,000 employes.

"The Santa Fe," continued Mr. Ripley, "hopes to establish esprit de corps among its employes and expects a liberal pension system will have this tendency. We have on this system as much if not more loyalty than most railroads enjoy, but it is not what it should be. The lack of loyalty among employes is a condition from which all corporations are suffering and it presents a most serious problem.

Asked for a reason for this condition, Mr. Ripley said:

"Too much prosperity, or at least too much business. The demand for labor and for all classes was never so great, and never before did the supply fall so short of the demand. The demand has become so sharp in the railway service that many of the employes have assumed a scornful independence and do not seem to care about the interests of their employers. The necessities of business have compelled us to hire many new men, who are not as competent as the old men. Add to this the fact that they know they will have no difficulty in getting work elsewhere and it is difficult to get them into good shape and to maintain a proper discipline. The Santa Fe is trying to overcome this tendency to disregard the company's interests by showing the men that the company has their interests at heart."

FIRE DESTROYS SHIP AT SEA

Passengers Panic Stricken—One Jumps Overboard and Is Drowned; Another Goes Mad.

CHRISTIANIA, Jan. 4.—News was received here today of a disaster which overtook the mail steamer Lindholmen, which plies between this port and Bergen, off Farsund, yesterday. The steamer was discovered to be on fire. A strong gale was blowing at the time and the flames soon spread to the saloons and cabins.

Three passengers, most of them seasick, hurried from their quarters to get on deck. Four of them were suffocated in their efforts to get out. Others jumped and another was crushed at the side of the ship. Finally, while the remainder of the half-dressed, and panic-stricken passengers were huddled on the forecastle in a blinding snowstorm, the rest of the ship being in flames, the captain drove the vessel ashore and managed to save the remaining passengers and the crew.

A most wonderful remedy for bronchial affections. Free from opium. In every way.

CITY OF PANAMA LOST

BELIEVED TO HAVE BEEN DESTROYED AT SEA.

Contained Many Prominent Passengers Portion of Vessel Washed Ashore.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 4.—A report was received in this city late tonight that several life-rafts and other wreckage with the name "City of Panama" on them, came ashore at Wardell beach early this afternoon. The City of Panama sailed from here December 21, for the isthmus. Among her passengers was Dr. Henry Waldo Coe of New York, and while at Panama will investigate the hygienic conditions as far as they affect labor. He will make a report to the Medical Editors association, of which he is president, and to President Roosevelt. Mrs. Coe is with him and a number of prominent Oregonians also.

In addition to her cabin passengers the City of Panama carried 25 Chinese and 20 in the steerage. Her cabin passengers were James Bowdry, W. G. McPherson, R. G. McPherson, Dr. E. Rutherford and wife, Dr. H. W. Coe and wife, T. E. Prince, Frank G. Gluyas, Thomas Clark, Chas. T. Spafford, J. F. Cooney, Harry Cooper, wife and child.

Wardell beach is on the coast in Santa Cruz county about 20 miles north of Santa Cruz City, and very remote from any telegraph or telephone communication. The news of the wreckage being washed ashore at that point, was brought to Pescadero tonight. Pescadero is about 15 miles north of Wardell beach.

IS ACCUSED OF CONSPIRACY

Powder Trust Is Said Now to Be Trying to Control Rifle Association.

CHICAGO, Jan. 4.—A dispatch to the Chronicle from New York says: The New York World today says:

"The powder trust, protected by a prohibitive tariff and rolling up millions in profit in its supply to the United States government alone, will, on January 8, employ every possible means to gain control of the National Rifle association and if successful can dictate the character of the ammunition for every state military organization in the union.

"The occasion will be the election of a president of the association, to be held in the 71st regiment armory. Gen. Bird W. Spencer, of Passaic, general inspector of rifle practice in the state of New Jersey, and the incumbent, is a candidate for re-election. James A. Drain, of Olympia, Wash., his opponent, is the candidate of the trust.

"Spencer's election means the throttling of what has been pronounced by an independent powder manufacturer to be an infamous conspiracy which makes commerce of patriotism and sells its product abroad for its sole profit.

The National Rifle association was incorporated in the state of New York in 1871. Its purpose was to encourage and promote rifle practice in the several states and territories. From July 1, 1905, to July 1, 1906, the trust sold to the government 5,947,800 pounds of smokeless ordnance powder. The cost of manufacture at the mills was 32 cents a pound. The price charged the government was 70 cents a pound, so in that one item alone the approximate profit was 38 cents a pound. Deducting freight charges, this aggregated $2,215,562.95. Three hundred thousand pounds of powder for .32-calibre weapons were produced at a net cost of 44 cents a pound and sold at 84 1-2 cents; 20,000 blank fire cartridges, costing 41 cents, at 92 2-19 cents, and 7,869 pounds for the .38 calibres, costing 59 cents, at 94 1-2 cents. The total profit, approximately footed up $2,845,364, which is greater than any profit ever derived by any seller of any product of staple sold in one year to the government in the history of the republic and the monopoly carrying on this business was at the same time contracting with foreign nations to furnish ammunition with which they could attack American merchantmen on the high seas.

The powder trust is known legally as the Dupont International Powder company, organized under the laws of the state of Delaware, with a capitalization of $10,000,000. The corporation is controlled by the E. I. Dupont Denemours Powder company, which was incorporated in New Jersey May 10, 1903, "for the purpose of consolidating the various explosive manufacturies controlled by the Dupont interests."

At present, practically all of the subsidiary companies are controlled by the main corporation, either through ownership of stock or ownership of property. The authorized capital is $25,000,000, at the par value of $100. The trust has absorbed all the powder manufacturing interests save the Buckeye Powder company of Peoria, Ill., of which Robert S. Waddell is president. He has issued an address to the president of the United States and to the senators and representatives in congress on what he terms "the powder conspiracy."

MRS. MYERS NEARING GALLOWS

Woman Murderer Will Be Hanged Unless Governor Folk Intervenes.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Jan. 4.—Judge John F. Phillips, in the United States district court here this morning, denied the application of the attorneys for Mrs. Aggie Myers for a writ of habeas corpus. This means that Mrs. Myers, who is now in jail at Liberty under sentence of death for the murder of her husband, and Frank Hettman, in jail at Kansas City for complicity in the crime, will be executed on January 18 unless Governor Folk interferes.

The arguments on the application for the writ in this now famous case were made earlier in the week. The attorneys for Mrs. Myers argued that the Clay county court had no jurisdiction in the case when the trial was held, basing their contention on a technicality. They sought to have the case re-tried.

Attorney General Hadley replied for the state. Judge Phillips, in announcing his decision today, said that inasmuch as the point in dispute had not been taken before the United States supreme court, in which the attorneys for Mrs. Myers recently unsuccessfully sought a retrial on a claim of error, he did not feel justified in passing upon it, and he therefore denied the writ.

As a last resort the attorneys for Mrs. Myers and Hattman will now appeal to Governor Folk to commute the sentence of the prisoners to life imprisonment.

Judge Phillips, in denying the writ today, said:

"As much as the judge of this court might desire to see this unfortunate woman saved from the horrors of an execution, his powers are limited by established law, uncontrolled by considerations of mercy, a quality which, however gracious, under our constitutional system of government, can be exercised in this case only by the chief executive of the state."

ARE CAUGHT IN SEA OF MUD

Buildings Destroyed and Animals Are Killed by Avalanches of Mud From Mt. Vesuvius.

NAPLES, Jan. 4.—The recent heavy rains have caused enormous avalanches of mud to start from the top of Mount Vesuvius. They grow larger as they sweep along, and eventually spread out over several square miles. Farm buildings were totally destroyed and a number of animals killed, but fortunately no people lost their lives. One man was carried almost a mile on the sea of mud, but was rescued by three courageous women, who made their way over the avalanche at the risk of their lives and succeeded in bringing him to a point of safety. A train on the Vesuvius road was blocked by the mud.

Workmen who have been clearing away the ruins of the church at San Giuseppe, where there was great loss of life last April, discovered six more bodies. The bodies were badly decomposed and could only be recognized by fragments of clothing or trinkets.

FIGHTING BEGUN IN MOROCCO

Villages in Direction of Zinat Reported Burning—Firing Heard.

TANGIER, Morocco, Jan. 4.—The semaphore at Cape Spartel signaled this evening that villages in the direction of Zinat were burning and that firing had been heard from them. Sidi Mohammed Gabbas, the minister of war, is encamped near here awaiting the arrival from El Khar of the second column of the sultan's army. When the two forces meet an attempt will be made to cut off Raisuli's retreat.

The Beni M'Sur tribe is at Zinat, hemmed in on the north and south by government troops. Their escape on the west toward Arzilla is prevented by a portion of the division under the minister of war, while the Riff tribes who are hostile to Raisuli, encircle them to the east.

HONOLULU, Jan. 4.—The seismograph at Pago Pago, Samoa, recorded a heavy earthquake shock December 25, according to advices received here today. The earthquake is supposed to have been in the central Pacific ocean.

THE EARTH'S INTERIOR IRON?

From the London Telegraph.

Frequent earthquakes of late have enormously increased scientific curiosity about the earth's interior. On this subject Sir Oliver Lodge observes in Nature that it has long been suspected that the earth is an iron planet, and now, through the work of Strutt and others, the evidence just worth noting, as a matter of simple arithmetic, that a core of metallic iron of density 7, covered with a crust of rock 700 miles thick, of density 2.5, together make up average terrestrial density 5.6, but recent evidence points to a crust much thinner than the above. It is to be hoped that the "boring" proposals of the Hon. Chas. Parsons will before long attract the attention they deserve."

DUN'S WEEKLY TRADE REVIEW

Year Opens Bright With Promise of Business—Much Complaint, Still, of Car Shortage.

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade tomorrow will say:

The new year opens bright with promise of business, no excessive stocks being carried over and results of inventories fully equal to sanguine anticipations. It is noticeable in dispatches from the west that there was less than the customary lull in business during the holidays, while bargain sales are rapidly disposing of the moderate supplies remaining on hand. There is much complaint of car shortage from northwestern flour mills and export trade is also restricted because grain and other merchandise fail to reach the seaboard promptly. Many contracts for a large tonnage of steel appeared during the past week, notably structural material for San Francisco. Railway requirements show no abatement, few contracts being considered, however, except for delivery in the last half of the year. Shipments of bales of shelting have been sent to China, the first export business from that quarter for a long time, and no more orders could have been secured by the making of offers.

Wheat was depressed by accumulated stocks at the northwest, and weather conditions favorable for winter wheat in this country, while the Argentine harvest is progressing rapidly. Shipments to Europe thus far this season from all surplus nations have not reached the dimensions promised by large crops, and the smaller yield in Russia is a sustaining factor in the markets for distant options. But domestic trading lacks vigor, speculators at the west taking little aggressive action.

WILL FLOAT COPPER COMPANY

Yates and McClain Buy 200 Acres of Mineral Land at Ely, Nevada. Say Camp Is Promising.

J. O. McClain, J. W. Yates and Attorney John Little returned to Colorado Springs yesterday morning from a trip to the new copper camp at Ely, Nevada. While there Messrs. McClain and Yates purchased 200 acres of mineral land and it is their intention to float a copper company in this market. Their new properties are within one and a half miles of the famous Giroux properties there, which have $9,000,000 worth of ore in sight and the stock of which is now selling for about $11 a share.

The three Colorado Springs men are very enthusiastic about the new copper camp.

"Why there is 40 square miles of copper ore in the camp at Ely," said Mr. McClain. "Such an immense body of copper ore has never been known before and the production is bound to be stupendous.

"The ore body lies all around Ely, it extends one mile east, eight miles west, one and a half miles south and three and a half miles north around the town.

"No one knows how much copper there is there but it is a certainty that it is one of the biggest copper deposits on earth. They have prospected all over that area with diamond drills and have struck copper every time. They have gone down 700 feet and not struck bottom on the ore deposit and have drifted 800 feet on either side at this depth and not found any side walls.

"Ely has a population of 6,000 people, the majority of whom went there in the last six months. Every one there predicts that the camp will have a population of 40,000 within the next two years.

"The ore lies in what is known as a "blanket" formation with a limestone cap streaked with iron. They have struck ore everywhere in the area I named at a depth of 90 to 200 feet. To illustrate how big a proposition it is, let me tell you that they are going to mine the ore with steam shovels. The railroad will practically extend into the mines and they will take the ore out with steam shovels and dump it on the cars.

"At present there is a great scarcity of labor and building material there because of the inadequate service of the Nevada & Northern, a road built in there three months ago from Cobre on the Southern Pacific. There is some talk of running into Ely from Tonopah. At Cobre we saw thousands of tons of mining machinery, mining and building materials and supplies stacked up along the track awaiting transportation to Ely. There are three lumber yards in the town and they have not a stick of lumber in their yards. All that arrives is hauled direct from the cars and is at once used for building purposes.

"The Guggenheims, who own the Nevada Consolidated Copper company there, are building a $5,000,000 smelter at Ely with a daily capacity of 15,000 tons of ore. They are now contemplating doubling the capacity of the smelter. Several smaller smelters are also being constructed.

"The miners are paid $4 a day and carpenters receive from $6 to $8 for a work day of eight hours. The cost of living is not excessive. A room can be obtained for $1 a night and goods meals for 50 cents. There is a large number of Colorado people there, principally from Cripple Creek, and many men from Montana and Goldfield are investing their money there."

There were also found valuable cut glass and much solid silverware in another trunk.

WHAT THE PRESS AGENTS SAY

MURRAY AND MACK AT THE OPERA HOUSE

At the Opera house this evening we will have the pleasure of seeing our old but ever welcome friends, Murray and Mack themselves, with the largest and best Show they ever gave us, entitled "Around the Town." The new piece was an instantaneous hit when they first produced it at the New York theater last fall in New York. During its tour on the road, the show has received praise from the press of every city visited, and the same company and production as played New York and Chicago will positively be seen here. Among the more prominent members of the cast besides the stars themselves will be Gus Pixley, formerly with the "Babes in Toyland" company; Gertrude Rutledge of "Prince of Pilsen" fame; Bobby Harrington of George M. Cohan parts, in "Little Johnny Jones;" May Gabriel of the "Fantana company; Francis Trumbull, the hit of "The Mayor of Tokio" company; Fred Gulliard, of "Sultan of Sulu" fame; Walter S. Brower of "The Free Lance" cast; P. J. Kane, the happy Tad, Bae Hamilton of "The Red Feather" company; Florence Cordelia of "The Vanderbilt Cup" cast, and the best singing and dancing chorus ever out of New York. Among the many song hits, possibly the best are: "Thursday," "Miss Van and Her Kandy Kids," "Hortense," "Mooney Time," "Dear Old Girl," "The Rose From Dixie," "Love, Love, Love," "The One and Only," "Dear Old Broadway," "At Evening Time," "The Girl, the Beach and Moon," and many others.

UNDER "THE HAM TREE."

McIntyre and Heath will be seen at the Opera house on next Tuesday evening in "The Ham Tree," described as Klaw and Erlanger's "Laugh Trust." The book is by George V. Hobart, lyrics by William Jerome, and the music by Jean Schwartz. The company includes, in addition to McIntyre and Heath, W. C. Fields, the comic juggler; Frederick V. Bowers, the tenor; the stately Jeanne Towler, Carolyn Gordon, Belle Gold, Alfred Fisher and David Torrence. The ensembles include the most beautiful chorus of singing and dancing girls ever presented in a musical play.

This is a real comic entertainment, and the audience is convulsed with laughter from start to finish. If there be any complaint, it is too comic and too severe a test to one's endurance in continuous laughter. But yet every patron delights in it and hundreds have seen it several times. The story is most interesting and introduces McIntyre and Heath in the famous skits on minstrelsy which have given them the reputation of being the two most interesting comedians in America.

THE "RED FEATHER."

Probably no comic opera production of the past decade has scored more heavily in local presentation than DeKoven, Klein and Cook's "Red Feather," and its return, which is announced for next Friday, at the Opera house, is anticipated with keen delight. While termed a comic opera, the "Red Feather" truly belongs in the class of standard opera, as its lyrics, book and music are all far above the average allotted to light musical attractions. For this season, Miss Cherdah Simpson, already extremely well known through her appearances with the Henry W. Savage productions, will sing the principal role of "Red Feather."

MISS ALBERTA GALLATIN

Miss Alberta Gallatin, starring in "Dorothy Vernon of Haddon Hall," the play built from Charles Major's book, comes to the Opera house on next Saturday. The time of the play dates back to the happy-go-lucky days of the good Queen Bess, and the neighborhood in which the action is supposed to have taken place is that surrounding Haddon Hall, one of the best preserved of the Elizabethan manor houses. The story was dramatized by Paul Kester. The star appears as a wilful and imperious young girl, vibrant between determined self-indulgence and splendid self-abnegation. She is in turn playful and serious, self-centered and self-forgetful, domineering and submissive, and filled with a humanity altogether without guile, a character which gives Miss Gallatin ample scope for the display of her talents.

EAT CANNED BEANS AND DIE

Three Persons Dead as Result of Ptomaine Poisoning.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 4.—Three persons are dead here as a result of ptomaine poisoning caused by eating canned beans. Henry Carter, a well known resident of Ontario, his daughter, Miss Mabel Carter, 28 years of age and Charles Edward Abbott, partook of canned beans for luncheon while on a camping trip and were almost immediately taken ill. They were able to return home, but the illness of all three terminated fatally. Miss Carter died yesterday and the other two today.

OKLAHOMA STILL SUFFERS

GUTHRIE, Okla., Jan. 4.—A special to the State Capital from Jet, Okla., says that the people of that village are in desperate straits as a result of a long continued fuel famine. Wood is unobtainable and even the price of corncobs is prohibitive. There has never been a time in the history of that town that a scarcity of fuel has been so pronounced.

A few farmers are hauling coal from Enid, a distance of 40 miles. The last car of coal that reached Jet several weeks ago lasted exactly fifty-five minutes.

SATURDAY, JANUARY 5, 1907.

NOW HE BOASTS OF IT!

QUITE the most astonishing development since the beginning of Simon Guggenheim's negotiations for the purchase of the United States Senatorship is set forth in the interview reprinted on the first page of The Gazette today from the current number of Ridgway's Weekly. We have always felt confident that Mr. Guggenheim was capable of using his money in any way that might be necessary to attain his political ambition, but we gave him credit for having enough decency and common sense to refrain from flaunting his corrupt methods in the faces of the people. But this was too much to expect. So long as there was a chance of defeat Mr. Guggenheim maintained a dense, discreet silence, but now that the whole affair is "cinched," he feels so good about it that he just can't help crowing. But he is not content with a justifiable crow; he must explain how he won, how he bought up the legislature.

"The money I have contributed has helped elect these men," he says, "and naturally they feel under obligations to me." I do not consider that it is wrong, and neither do I think that it can in any sense be called bribery."

It would be interesting and illuminating to hear Mr. Guggenheim's definition of the word "wrong," and also what he understands by "bribery."

William A. Clark bought a United States Senatorship in Montana a few years ago, and John Edward Addicks tried unsuccessfully for several years to do the same thing in Delaware, but neither of them ever boasted of it. It is left for Simon Guggenheim to show his contempt for the people of his state by taunting them with their disgrace.

Ridgway's asks, "Where else than in Colorado the Corrupt could these things happen without arousing a storm of popular indignation that would destroy Guggenheim and his paid-for-in-advance chattels in the legislature?"

Colorado the Corrupt! Nice advertising, that, to be spread before the people of the United States from Maine to California, from the Great Lakes to the Gulf. Yesterday it was in Ridgway's. Today it is in the daily newspapers. Next week it will be a subject of comment in the reviews.

Does the designation fit? As applied generally to the state—no. As applied to the choice of Simon Guggenheim to be the state's next Senator—yes. The whole procedure is corrupt. It is an infamy from which we shall not hear the last for a long time to come.

GOVERNOR M'DONALD'S MESSAGE.

WHEN the average citizen finds a lengthy Presidential or Gubernatorial message in his newspaper he probably contents himself with glancing over the brief summary of its contents printed at the beginning. In many cases this method is as satisfactory as any, for official messages are usually too prosaic to hold interest to the end. But there are exceptions. Mr. Roosevelt always manages to find something interesting to talk about, and he is generally successful too, in investing even dry subjects with a considerable degree of charm. But the Governor who tries to make his documents readable has a harder task, for as a rule people are not so interested in state affairs as they are in matters of national importance.

Governor McDonald's message, which was read to the Legislature, Thursday, is well worth careful reading, for it contains much valuable information about the condition of the state government and the various institutions, expressions of opinion as to reforms and new legislation, and all boiled down to a reasonable length. Mr. McDonald is a very conservative man, and he makes no rash statements or predictions. Beautiful visions and glowing word-pictures are conspicuously absent from his message. Neither do we find any allusion to what Governor Orman, in one of his messages, called "the down-trodding of the people." Our retiring executive notes with pleasure that Colorado is peaceful and prosperous and therefore contented, and though he modestly refrains from any expression of personal pride, it is none the less true that the present condition of the state is largely due to the honesty and general efficiency of his administration.

Most of the Governor's recommendations are embodied in the Republican platform, and as such form part of the labors to which the majority in the Legislature is pledged. We have already commented on a number of these subjects, such as the pure-food law, insurance law, and state examiner law. All of these are worthy measures and ought to be passed. Governor McDonald's recommendation with regard to the employment of convicts in road-building likewise deserves favorable consideration. One of Colorado's greatest needs is a good system of public highways, but if built by free labor the cost would be prohibitive. The state might as well get the benefit of the energy, now wasted, of several hundred idle prisoners in the Canon City penitentiary. By so doing hundreds of miles of good roads could be built cheaply, and, as the Governor suggests, the cost of maintaining the penitentiary would be so reduced that a reduction in taxation might be possible.

Other important recommendations of the Governor are the creation of a railway commission, the passage of an anti-trust law, restoration of the old grand jury law, depriving district attorneys of the right to dismiss suits without the approval of the trial judge, creation of additional coal mine inspectors, and an appropriation for the silver service for the cruiser Colorado. There are also two expressions which are likely to excite controversy, namely, the extension of the Governor's term from two to four years, and the election of United States Senators by direct vote of the people. As to the former, it is unquestionable that much is to be gained by avoiding the expense and disturbance to business incident to biennial elections. In several of the states Governors are chosen for four years, and the method seems to be quite as satisfactory as ours.

In discussing the method of electing Senators Governor McDonald remarks that it can only be done by constitutional amendment. This is true, if he means to take the matter entirely out of the hands of the legislature and leave it wholly to the people. But in Wisconsin, Illinois, Tennessee, and a number of other states the problem has apparently been solved by pledging legislative candidates to vote for certain Senatorial candidates. Of course there is no legal way to prevent a legislator thus pledged to vote for somebody else for Senator, but thus far, we believe, none of them has done it, and none of them is likely to do it, for it would mean his political extinction. Amending the Federal Constitution is so difficult that it is almost out of the question, and if a way can be devised whereby the same result can be achieved indirectly it is much better than to attempt the plan which Governor McDonald suggests.

No political reform is more to be desired, especially in this state, than the active participation of the people in the selection of the men who are sent to serve them in the upper branch of Congress. Just now in Colorado, we are having glaring proof of the fact that too often the people have nothing to do with it. The Legislature is about to elect a man whose unfitness for the place is notorious, and who would be overwhelmingly repudiated by his own party if the voters had a chance to express their views of his candidacy. But it is just such incidents as this that force the evils of the present method on the attention of the people, and thus hasten the day when reform will be inevitable.

Press Opinions

TO PREVENT REGRET.

From the Hartford Times.

A man rarely has reason to regret the things he doesn't say or the letters he doesn't write.

GOVERNMENT'S SALARIES.

From the Boston Herald.

Is there any reason why the employes of the postoffice department should be singled out among all those in the government service for increase in pay? Postmaster General Cortelyou, in his annual report, transmits to congress the request for such an advance. There is little doubt that the ability of the country to pay, as well as the cost of living, has greatly increased in the last fifteen years, and that wages in the government departments have not even been raised proportionately with those in private employment. We believe the letter carriers and postal clerks need higher pay, and should have it. But they do not need it any more than do Uncle Sam's workingfolk in all the other divisions.

NO EXCUSE FOR BEGGING.

From the Philadelphia Press.

The man who, able bodied, husky and redolent of rum, begs a few pennies for a night's lodging in these days is, in ninety-nine cases out of one hundred, a predatory tramp. If he is deserving of help, there are a dozen institutions willing and ready to extend it to him or to his family. The man who declares he cannot obtain work has the employment agencies of the city to contradict him. He may not be able to get just the kind of work that he thinks he should have, but he can get work at something and at remunerative wages.

It is at best a bad policy to give indiscriminately to street mendicants. It is worse policy to do so when the fact is recognized that there is more work in this country than there are workmen.

THE IDLE YOUNG PERSON.

From the Pictorial Review.

There is a very unfortunate tendency in girls who have left school to fall into a deplorably idle state, without regular occupation of any kind, and unable to follow a social round that keeps them busy with a succession of pleasures, they become that most unfortunate thing—the idle girl. Parents seem to be strangely thoughtless in allowing this condition to be reached. Once established, the habit is almost impossible to break. These young people take everything they can get, ask for more, consider no one, and never think that, for all they have been receiving in their school life, they owe something in return if it is nothing more than a noble womanly example of industry. The parents of such young people—and young lads are as often found in this category as young girls—have toiled patiently for years, paid taxes, rates, school bills and the thousand and one expenses their children have demanded, and yet have allowed childhood to grow to youth, and youth to more mature age without impressing it with the obligation of paying its just debts to the world. Do these parents expect that indulged and pampered child to have a character strong enough to withstand the world's demands on it? Is it possible they do not realize that weak characters invariably go to the wall? Have they no vision of weakness and selfishness leading to possible crime? They have gained their way through industry and honesty, yet they have not been firm in the government of their child, and their virtues may be of no influence on the nature, allowed to develop selfishly.

A SINGULAR SELFISHNESS.

From the Pictorial Review.

Women are called unselfish as a sex; is it unselfish to take the easier part in life and keep it because the law allows it? The easiest part is to be without responsibility and to avoid thought. Many women think that if they work very hard in their homes, are saving and careful, they have as hard a task as their husbands. Such women are ignorant of the meaning of responsibility, and they have avoided thinking about it too closely. If they once had on their shoulders the success or the failure of supplying their entire household, they would appreciate that the hardest work without that anxiety is as child's play to the responsibility of meeting all those financial obligations comprehended as the duty of the provider.

It is said that a woman is never so happy as when she is getting a bargain. Now, this impulse in women to make a good "trade," to get something for nothing, or for very little, may show thrifty management, but, carried through everything, does it not show a mean spirit, or at least a selfish one? For there can not be a real return made if a thing is got at any advantage. To prevent workers from being unfairly dealt with, the co-operative work of the Consumers league was instituted by some of those women who were unselfish enough to assume responsibility and thought, some of them without necessity or obligation to do so. If I could persuade all our readers to consider some of the serious and important subjects that are being written and spoken of they will commence to make return for all the thought and effort the government has been put to in their behalf.

Open Parliament

AN APPRECIATION.

To the Editor of The Gazette:

Kindly allow space in your paper for an appreciation by one having an acquaintance and friendship of long standing, of Dr. Royal Porter Wales, whose death and burial within the week have been chronicled in your columns.

Dr. Wales had been a resident of Colorado Springs but a short time, during which he had been in fast failing health, and therefore there has been no widespread knowledge of the rare qualities of the man. Even those who knew him best here did not really know him, for his activities were in another part of the country, and this had been a mere halfway house to the now reached "better land."

The handful of neighbors and intimate friends of the family who gathered at his home to do him the last earthly honors strikingly illustrates our ways toward a stranger dying in a strange land. But had Dr. Wales died in the place that knew him, but shall now know him no more forever, there would have been no church in the town large enough to hold the crowds which would have assembled to pay their tributes of respect and affection. For in several villages and two or three counties of northern Illinois, Dr. Wales had for at least a third of a century been a force in his profession and a man of unusual personal influence. Such was the confidence in his ability as a practitioner, and such the power of his magnetic personality, that his services were sought far and near.

Though not strictly what is known as a "country doctor," he had an immense country practice, and it necessitated many a long, weary ride through the drifts of prairie roads or the summer's heats, to the lonely farm house where the life of a child, perhaps, hung on the presence of "Dr. Porter," as he was familiarly called to distinguish him from a brother in the same profession. He was indeed like St. Luke, "the beloved physician," and the charming courtesy of his manner, his gentle and exquisite sympathy, his cheer and kindly humor, were perhaps the best part of his "materia medica."

Although a man of culture, who had a refined appreciation of men and women of similar tastes to his own, he was always one of the people whom he served with such scrupulous fidelity for so many years. Always on the right side in matters of public moment, he was essentially a man devoted to the individual in life, to his family, by whom he was well-nigh idolized, and to every single "case" with whom he came in contact, and to whom his life forces were eventually given. Of such a one it might well be said. Mark the perfect man and behold the upright:" for with all the qualities of tenderness and gentleness, which were probably intensified by the demands of his profession, he was the manliest of men.

Never making a display of the pressing calls upon his time, as is the fashion of some doctors, Dr. Wales had about him almost to his last days, an alertness and vigor, an elasticity of step and a sparkle of the eye that awakened admiration and inspired confidence and respect.

It is good for us all to contemplate the passing of such a man, and those of us who have known him best will long cherish his memory as a man of a thousand.

Colorado Comment

SARCASM?

From the Johnstown Breeze.

Fort Collins wants an alcohol factory. That may explain the condition of some visitors from there.

CRIPPLE CREEK'S RELEASE.

From the Cripple Creek Times.

Anyway, the Cripple Creek district should feel mighty happy over the fact that we do not have to pass through what seems so certain to be the fate of Nevada in 1907. Perhaps we would be able to forget the dark days of the federation if we were not so constantly reminded of them by what the federation is doing in Nevada.

TUNNELING CONTRACTS.

From the Mosca Herald.

Contracts have been let for the grading and tunneling on the new line of the Rio Grande between Creede and Durango and it is believed that work will be commenced early next spring. This road will be used jointly by the Rio Grande with the California Southern, which has its own line surveyed from Del Norte to Pueblo across Madinau pass. Indications point that there will be considerable railroad work going on in the valley next season.

MINER'S BRIGHT PROSPECTS.

From the Salida Mail.

The Colorado miner has every reason to feel that his opportunities for the new year which is about to be ushered in are brighter and better than for some years past. The price of silver has already advanced to a point where it is possible for our many great silver producing mines to be operated successfully, and now comes the report that the American Smelting & Refining company offers $5.09 per hundred pounds for lead, an increase of 25 cents and the highest price ever paid for that metal. Colorado is one of the greatest producers of both silver and lead and the advances will simply mean "something doing" in this state next year.

THE APPLE.

From the Grand Junction Sentinel.

The apple has grown to be a medical quantity in the last few years. Of course people have been eating apples for the past century or more, but they never enjoyed such luscious fruit as is now grown. Apples were then eaten perfunctorily, now they are eaten for their medical virtue. The old saying that apples are golden in the morning, silver at noon and lead at night, is not far wide of the truth. Of course apples may be eaten at night with a great deal of good. What is food for one is poison to another, and each individual must study his own nature, so far as fruit eating goes. Other fruits produce many opposite conditions in various persons. But the apple taken altogether is a fruit which is eaten more generally today than any fruit grown. By the side of a luscious orange several years ago, the apple had no show whatever. The measure of selling is now largely in favor of the apple and the single fruit will sell side by side for the same price, but many times in favor of the apple. Long may the apple survive as a fruit.

IN THE OLDEN DAYS.

From the Daily Mining Record.

"It was not like this in the olden days" in mining. Take any issue of the Record, glance through its news columns and witness the states and camps represented. The public has come to do things on a large scale. Some ten years ago, all the mining excitement we could stand was in a single camp. Then we had to rest. That was true a while before that of our notions of banking and manufacturing. We hadn't begun to grow, and there were not so many of us. That is also another factor.

The number of human eyes squinted at on Ellis island for trachoma is by far greater than it was ten years back, and the demand for men who can shovel sand and drive spikes on a railroad has also increased.

Some of us can't keep pace with these strides. We are fond of looking into and sighing for the olden days with their golden glory, because the things that went with them have worn away; our images have become perfect, and we have learned to treat the past as the public treats dead poets—with a kind, tolerant consideration approaching reverence, because, you see, the dead and the past are gone forever and we don't take chances saying harsh things about them.

But the whole scheme centers about the NOW. This is the real time, the period we are living. And there are greater chances now than the past ever harbored.

EARTH STILL A MYSTERY

Scientists Try to Determine the Nature of the Interior—Heat May Be Caused by Contraction of the Surface Others Hold That It Is Generated by Friction of Water.

From the Chicago Chronicle.

One of the results of the recent California earthquake, a result which will doubtless be further stimulated by the present seismic disturbances in Chile, has been to revive scientific interest in the problem of the physical state of the interior of the earth. Although man has been living on this globe for many thousands of years, yet the actual composition of the earth and the state of its interior is still a mystery. We know a great deal more about the sun and moon and our brother planets, many million miles away, than we do of conditions 100 miles beneath our feet.

The earth, while an insignificant member of the universe, is really an enormous body as compared to man, else we could dig up a sample of the interior of our globe and find out exactly what it is like. We have bored some pretty deep holes in the earth, one artesian well being a mile and a quarter in depth, but it does not begin to penetrate into the interior of the earth, as our planet is nearly 8,000 miles in diameter. A comparison may help us to appreciate the enormous mass of the earth and what a short distance we have actually penetrated into its depths. If we should take a large apple to represent the earth, then the skin of the apple would correspond to a crust fully fifteen miles thick. The next time you eat an apple peel off a piece of the skin. Imagine yourself as a microbe so infinitesimally tiny that even with the aid of machinery you can not prick a hole one-twelfth of the distance through the skin of the apple on which you live. You will then appreciate the fruitlessness of trying to tell by introspection what the interior of our great apple is composed of.

It may seem strange, but it is nevertheless true, that we have learned more about the state of the earth's interior from examining its behavior with respect to the sun and the moon than from any actual samples of its interior. Samples from the depths of the earth are ejected every once and a while by volcanoes, but these have given us very erroneous ideas of the makeup of our planet. We used to be taught in school that the earth is a molten mass surrounded by a thin crust of solid matter. This was a natural inference, based on the lava thrown out from the volcanoes. Furthermore, it has long been known that the earth grows hotter the farther we penetrate into the interior. For every 50 feet of depth there is a rise in temperature of one degree Fahrenheit, so that at 100 miles below the surface we would reach a heat sufficient to melt and vaporize all known elements.

Earth Not Fluid Inside.

But astronomers tell us that notwithstanding this evidence the earth can not be fluid inside, for if it were the moon and sun would raise great tides in the molten sea, tides so powerful that were the crust of the earth 100 miles thick, and of solid steel, it would bend under the enormous pressure and rise and fall just as do the tides of the ocean. One of the very best proofs that the earth does not bend in this way is the fact that the ocean does have tides, because if the floor of the ocean were bulged up just as much as is the surface the depth of water would always remain the same and there would be no visible tide. Undoubtedly the earth is distorted a trifle under the attraction of the moon, but just how much it is rather difficult to discover.

Fully 40 years ago Lord Kelvin studied this question and came to the conclusion that the earth must be more rigid than glass. Later, Sir George Darwin extended the investigation and showed that the earth must be more rigid than steel. Just now Professor T. J. J. See of the United States naval observatory has published his recent exhaustive investigations by which he has arrived at the conclusion that this earth as a whole must be as rigid as nickel steel, the metal used for the armor of battleships, and which is one of the hardest materials we know. He has demonstrated that near the surface the earth is about as rigid as granite, which is one-sixth that of steel, while at the center the earth is fully three times as rigid as nickel steel. This does not mean that the interior of the earth is not hot, nor even that the materials in it will not flow. A glass marble seems like a very rigid body. We may examine it most carefully with a microscope and yet discover no flattening due to its weight. It will hold its shape perfectly. But, to use an illustration of Professor Moulton's, if this marble were 20 miles in diameter its weight would be so great that it would flow out at the bottom like pitch. Ice is also a very rigid substance, yet in glaciers, where it is subjected to great weights, it flows down a curved channel just as would a river of water.

Heat Caused by Contraction.

Now, the heat in the interior of the earth is supposedly caused by the gradual contraction of the earth, the contraction being due to the weight of the materials which have been and still are falling in slowly toward the center of the earth. But the contraction imposes such a pressure on the matter in the interior that it acts just like a solid. When water is heated to a temperature of 212 degrees Fahrenheit it becomes steam. But if the water is under pressure it must be heated to a much higher temperature before it will turn to steam. Furthermore, if the water be sealed in a heavy steel vessel it can be heated to an extreme heat known as the "critical temperature," at which it will turn to a gas regardless of further pressure.

Apparently, the heat in the interior of the earth is so great that were there any moisture there it would show itself in a red or white hot steam, which, however, would be so dense as to have many of the properties of a liquid or even solid. In the same way metals and rocks are probably heated far above their melting points, but owing to the pressure, are kept in the solid state, if fluid, are so dense as to act like solids. Very probably there are cavities in the interior of the earth where the pressure is not quite so great, and these are filled with a more fluid material.

Whether the earth is still slowly contracting is a question. Some people point to earthquakes and volcanoes as evidences of contraction. It has been shown that if this earth should contract only one-twenty-fifth of an inch in diameter it would account for 500 volcanic eruptions, each throwing out 10,000,000,000 cubic yards of material. It is now, however, the generally accepted theory that volcanoes and earthquakes are caused by local disturbances. The materials composing the earth are held in a state of constant equilibrium. By action of the sea vast deposits of rock or sand are gradually piled up in certain localities, while from other regions large quantities of materials are washed away. This destroys the equilibrium and in regaining the proper balance an earthquake or a volcanic eruption takes place. Volcanoes and earthquakes are supposed to be kindred phenomena and they usually occur along the coast, seldom inland.

Theory of Friction Heat.

The latest theory to account for the heat of volcanoes is that of Dr. Elihu Thomson. In his opinion the heat is generated by friction. When water flows through a pipe a small amount of heat is produced, due to its friction against the walls of the pipe. If the water is forced through the pipe at a high pressure this is proportionately increased and if the pipe is surrounded by asbestos to prevent it from radiating off the heat the water will emerge quite warm. But putting bends and turns in the pipe and forcing the water through it may be made to actually boil. Now, it is Dr. Thomson's idea that hot springs are thus produced by the friction of the water forced through a long, tortuous channel and not by the heat stored in the interior of the earth. In the case of a volcano a readjustment of the earth's crust may press up the solid matter of the interior until it finds a vent, when by its rapid escape through the crater it will develop sufficient heat to be immediately liquefied and turned to lava, or if the channel is very long and tortuous the lava may be completely consumed and burned to ashes before being ejected from the crater.

ROOSEVELT FOOLED 'EM.

Altoona, dispatch to Philadelphia Record.

J. R. Heckman of Somerset county has received an interesting letter from a friend in the canal zone, giving a brief but much more interesting account of President Roosevelt's visit to the canal than was contained in the dispatches. The letter follows:

"Teddy was here and saw more in three days than the commission has seen in three years. He did not go any place they wanted to take him; he just went where he darned please. He never ate a meal at their banquets. He would sneak off and eat at some of the government boarding houses, where they least expected him. He actually went through mud up to his knees, with his white suit on and it raining in bucketfuls.

"Oh, he fooled them. He told them that he did not want to see the places that were all right; it was the places that were not right that he wanted to see. There was not one in the bunch that could keep up with him. He went into nigger quarters and sat down and talked with the niggers, and asked them all kinds of questions. Also, he went into the white quarters. I heard he told officials how things had to be from this on. Some of them went to arguing the case, and said that such could not be done. He simply said that if they had no remedy he had one.

"I heard he got mad at one place and just raised Cain; talked out in the street so everybody could hear him. You should have seen him galloping down some of these muddy streets, the mud flying over his head. He showed them how to get around."

HOMELY AND SHE KNEW IT.

From the New York Press.

"Beauty may be only skin deep," said the admirer of it, "but the reverse is distressing to me. The other evening at a club dinner I was put next to a woman who seemed to me to be about the homeliest woman I had ever seen. She was so homely that I had made up my mind to change seats surreptitiously with some friend, when she began to talk to me, telling me about her life in Missouri and her husband.

"Do you know," she said naively, "he waited for me five years. Finally I said to him: 'Well, if there's nothing else for it, I suppose I must marry you, but I don't see how in the world you can fancy me, I am so terribly homely.'

"It was strange, but after that I lost sight of her homeliness entirely. Before the evening was over I had got to thinking her actually pretty."

WHERE WATER IS PRECIOUS.

Water is sometimes very scarce and precious on the South African veldt according to a writer, who says: "In our veldt, cottage we had no well, only large tanks and about August our condition usually became desperate. If you washed your hands you carried the precious fluid out to pour it on some thirsty plant or vegetable, the bath water the same, part of it being saved to scrub floors with. Cabbage and potato water was allowed to cool and then used for the garden or to wash the dogs in first, so that these waters did three duties."

HOLBROOK & PERKINS

P.B. STEWART HONORED

OFFERED COMMISSIONER GENERALSHIP OF LAND OFFICE.

Is Now in Washington Conferring With Roosevelt — May Become Member of Cabinet.

The federal office of commissioner general of the land office was yesterday tendered to Philip B. Stewart of this city, by President Roosevelt, according to advices received in Colorado Springs.

Nothing as to Mr. Stewart's decision in the matter, although it is said by his close friends that the proffered position is intended by the chief executive as only preliminary to higher honors, possibly a place in the cabinet. The present land commissioner general is W. G. Richards, whose term expires March 4. The salary is $5,000 per year.

The offer of the position to Mr. Stewart is doubly significant at the present time, in view of the alleged gigantic land frauds which have been perpetrated, and this move on the part of President Roosevelt is taken to mean that he is determined to have the entire matter closely investigated. A complete revision of the laws pertaining to the administration of federal lands is contemplated.

Mr. Stewart left this city Monday night in response to a telegram from the president. He arrived in Washington yesterday and was immediately tendered the position by President Roosevelt, according to dispatches. Nothing is known at Mr. Stewart's home regarding his intentions, beyond the fact that he expects to be gone 10 days.

Philip B. Stewart is a prominent figure in local social and business circles. He is affiliated with several of the leading clubs of the city, and is a member of a number of banking and other financial institutions. Mr. Stewart lives at 1228 Wood avenue.

Mr. Stewart has for years been mentioned in connection with various political elective offices, including that of United States senator, but steadfastly refused to become a candidate until last fall, when he was prevailed on to accept the nomination for governor on the Republican ticket. He afterward withdrew, his successor, Chancellor H. A. Buchtel, being elected to the office.

BUYS A DENVER RESTAURANT

W. C. Jones Pays $8,000 for the Lynhaven—Will Continue to Run Home Dairy Here.

W. C. Jones, the well-known Colorado Springs caterer and owner of the Home Dairy and Cafeteria restaurants here has purchased the Lynhaven restaurant at Denver and has announced his intention of removing the Cafeteria to that city in a short time. Mr. Jones paid $8,000 for the Lynhaven, which is one of the most popular restaurants of Denver. It is located on Tremont street between Sixteenth and Seventeenth streets.

According to Mr. Jones, he will continue to make his home in this city but will spend a good deal of his time in Denver.

Personal Mention

WAGES ARE INCREASED

PART OF COAL MINE EMPLOYES TO GET MORE PAY.

Advance Ranges From Five to Ten per Cent—Miners Will Hold Meeting Soon.

All of the coal mine operators in the vicinity of Colorado Springs have granted an increase in wages to a portion of their employes at the mines north and east of the city.

A meeting of the operators was held Wednesday at which the increase was decided upon. The operators declined to give out any definite figures regarding the increase or how many men it affects, further than to say that the increase ranges from five to ten per cent.

It is understood, however, that the increase will affect only the mule drivers, coal haulers and other laborers, other than miners. The increase, when formally announced, will date from January 1, 1907.

The coal mines in this district include the Austin Bluffs mine, Curtis mine, Danville mine, Pike View mine, Rapson mine, Williamsville Slope mine and others. They employ about 300 men in all capacities.

The miners' union will hold a meeting next week at which the increase granted will probably be announced. The union men have announced that they will make a demand for an eight-hour work day and it is not improbable that they may formulate their demand at their next meeting.

MATLOCK SENDS INVITATIONS

Invites 3,000 Ticket Sellers to Take "Grandest One-Day Trip in the World."

Traffic Manager W. A. Matlock of the Colorado Springs & Cripple Creek District railway has extended a special invitation to all of the railway ticket sellers west of Chicago, numbering 3,000, to take a trip over the Short Line any time during the year.

The invitation, which is handsomely engraved, will be sent to every "man behind the gun," as the ticket seller is termed. It requests the pleasure of showing him the grandest one-day trip in the world to the greatest gold camp on earth."

Mr. Matlock believes that the invitation will prove of benefit to the Short Line, as the man who sells the tickets is often able to direct the route of the purchaser.

HATTAN HAS RESIGNED.

Leaves for Fort Worth Soon—Several Local Promotions.

William W. Hattan, for the last two years chief clerk of the Colorado Springs and Cripple Creek District railway, has resigned his place to accept the position of chief clerk to General Passenger Agent D. C. MacWatters of the Trinity and Brazos Valley railway in Texas. Mr. MacWatters was formerly general passenger agent of the Short Line.

Mr. Hattan will leave Thursday for Fort Worth, Texas, the headquarters of the road, to assume his new duties.

E. D. Richards has been made chief clerk of both passenger and freight matters in the general traffic office of the Short Line, and C. E. Helmuth, now employed in the auditor's office, has been appointed cashier.

JUVENILE COURT SOCIETY

CHICAGO, Jan. 4.—The International Juvenile Court society was formed here today.

PLANS ARE DISCUSSED

PROPERTY OWNERS CONFER ON IMPROVEMENTS.

Wide Diversity of Opinion Expressed—Matter Will Be Threshed Out.

The proposed vacation, as a thoroughfare, of East Pike's Peak avenue at its intersection with the Santa Fe railroad tracks, comprises the sole objection on the part of the property owners in that section of the city to the depot and street improvements proposed by the Santa Fe road. A meeting of about 30 interested property holders was held in Red Men hall last night, the sense of the meeting being to the effect that the projected vacation of Pike's Peak avenue was objectionable.

Van E. Rouse was chairman of the meeting. Judge H. G. Lunt explained to the property owners the general plans of the railroad, which include the construction of a subway at Huerfano street, the grading and improving of El Paso street between Kiowa and Huerfano streets, and the building of two conduits over Shook's Run near El Paso street—one at Kiowa and one at Huerfano street.

He pointed out that the vacation of Pike's Peak avenue and the construction of a subway at Huerfano street would do away with the dangerous grade crossings now existing at the intersections of these streets with the railroad tracks, which is in itself an important feature.

All work will be done at the expense of the railroad company, according to its plans, said Judge Lunt, and the company asked in return that Pike's Peak avenue be vacated at its intersection with the railroad tracks, and the railroad be granted an added 12 feet to its right of way across Pike's Peak avenue. This is requested in order that the company's property on either side of the avenue may run across in a straight line. According to the plans, the Manitou and other street cars which turn at the depot will run east on Huerfano street and turn north at the depot to Pike's Peak avenue, returning westward on that street, as they did several years ago. The cars bound east of the depot would turn north on Wahsatch avenue and thence east on Kiowa street, through the subway.

The subject was discussed at length and with some warmth among the property owners, the proposition to vacate Pike's Peak avenue comprising the main feature of argument. All agreed with the other plans of the railroad, but, with one or two exceptions, those present were strongly against the vacation of the street.

The general impression prevailed that the railroad would in time use the right of way north of the passenger depot as a freight and switching yard, if the street were vacated, despite the declaration of Judge Lunt that nothing of the kind is contemplated. The attorney said that the general superintendent of the road, as well as the local superintendent, had positively stated that such was not their intention.

City Attorney R. H. Ashworth, who was present to explain any points not understood by those present, pointed out that, if such were the intention of the railroad, their present right of way gives them the same opportunity as if the street were vacated, and that the company could easily have done in the past, hay they so desired, what the property owners are afraid they will do in the future.

Sentiment against the proposed vacation, however, continued strong. Alderman E. B. Hosman, who represents the Fifth ward, in which is located the depot site and surrounding ground, briefly addressed the meeting. He said that he desired to act for the property owners in the matter and that it was for them to decide.

William Ord claimed that the property owners should be awarded damages for the depreciation in their property which would follow the consummation of the company's plans. Rouse also spoke against the proposition.

E. R. Stark, a large property owner in that section, spoke strongly in favor of the vacation of the street. He argued that the construction of a union depot would result in the substitution of the present passenger depot by a freight depot and yards, with the passenger station placed further south. The obstruction of the railroad's present plans, he said, would further the replacement of the present passenger station.

Judge Lunt said that there seemed little hope of agreeing on the proposition, and added that the matter will be brought before the council. The plans of the railroad will be introduced at a meeting of the council, and the subject will be threshed out before that body by the property owners and the company's representatives.

Miss Mabel Barbee, of the class of '06, Colorado college, who has been spending the holidays with her friend, Miss Helen West, 508 North Weber street, left yesterday morning for Victor, Colo.

ANOTHER BLIND SCHOOL

STATE WILL BE ASKED TO PROVIDE FOR ADULT BLIND.

Secretary of State Board of Charities and Corrections Here to Confer With Argo.

The State Board of Charities and Correction will present to the legislature during its present session a bill asking for an appropriation for a state industrial school for the adult blind. With this end in view C. E. Hagar, secretary of the State Board of Charities and Corrections, visited Colorado Springs last night to confer with W. K. Argo superintendent of the Colorado School for the Deaf and Blind, who has been gathering data covering the practibility of such an institution in this state. The amount of the appropriation that will be asked has not been determined.

Mr. Hagar said last night in the lobby of the Alamo:

"It is the purpose of the board to have an industrial school and home for the adult blind, because such an institution is badly needed in this state. There are in all about two blind adults in Colorado. A number of these are thrown on the mercy of the state as they being untrained are unable to support themselves in a proper manner.

"Although I think that there is not much chance for us to have the appropriation granted during this session, we can at least start the movement and have it in good running order when the right time comes. The legislature is now confronted with a great many more recommendations for appropriations that it knows what to do with. That is what makes me dubious as to the immediate success of our proposition.

Referring to the school itself, Mr. Hagar continued:

"We do not wish to have the school and home as an adjunct to the deaf and blind school. This institution is in a proper shape as it is and there should be no changes in its government. Besides this the other school would not be for children and children and adults should never be taught under the same roof.

"In our proposed institution we wish to teach the adult blind how to make a living for themselves. Given a training, a sightless person is raised from the plane of helplessness to that of an honorable citizen who is dependent on no one for his daily bread.

"We do not wish our institution to be simply a home for the helpless. There is nothing further from our purpose. We wish to make good citizens.

"Of course the manner in which the proposed school shall be conducted has not been taken up by the board as yet, nor do I have any idea of the plan which will be followed.

"My trip down here is simply for a conference with Superintendent Argo to find out what he has gathered in the way of data concerning the success of other schools of the nature in various parts of the country. He has given me the fruit of what he has learned and it is that a school and home would be a success while a home alone would probably amount to nothing.

"Just how much it will take to start our school I cannot say. I can say, however, that I think that we could make a beginning on very little."

Mr. Hagar left on return to Denver this morning.

NEWS OF THE LOCAL COURTS

Direct informations were filed by the district attorney's office and criminal caplases issued in the district court yesterday, in several cases from justice courts. William Taylor and Pete Guy, both colored, charged with robbery, were placed under bonds of $1,500 each; Hugh Smith, colored, charged with larceny from person, was bound over in the sum of $300; James Morgan, accused of grand larceny, was placed under bond of $700, and the bond of Ed McCollum, colored, charged with burglary, was fixed at $1,000. The defendants were all committed in default of bail, and will appear before the district court on January 8.

In the district court, yesterday, Judge L. W. Cunningham decided the long-contested case of E. A. Colburn vs. Mary S. Chase et al, in favor of the plaintiff. The suit involved title to lot 7, block 196, Colorado City, the property comprising a house and lot on Washington avenue, valued at several hundred dollars. The court decided that a tax title deed issued December 15, 1900, was void, and that Colburn was entitled to the property in fee simple. The defendant was directed to pay the plaintiff $74.95 damages.

In the cases of Oliver P. Jackson vs. Henry Johns, and Lazard Cahn vs. Emily A. McCullough, the plaintiffs yesterday filed motions that on January 7 they will ask that the cases be set for hearing. In the case of Annis Duncan vs. the Denver and Rio Grande railroad, the plaintiff filed a motion that on January 14 he would ask that the case be set for hearing.

The defendant company, in the case of John E. Harmon vs. the Denver and Rio Grande railroad, yesterday filed a motion in the district court that the plaintiff make his affidavit more specific, especially with regard to the direction of the train, sparks from which are alleged to have burned property belonging to the plaintiff.

"Rosie" Jones and Ralph Rowson, who were arrested by the police yesterday, are still in the city jail and will probably be prosecuted by the local authorities, although the Denver and Pueblo officials have numerous robbery charges against them. The prisoners are accused of stealing a watch chain from the McDonald rooming house, on the corner of Nevada avenue and Bijou street.

W. S. Morris, judge-elect of the district court, yesterday took the oath of office, being sworn in by District Clerk Clyde L. Starrett.

SUBSTANTIAL ADVANCE

GENERAL DISPOSITION TO BUY STOCKS.

Speculative Sentiment Assumes Tangible Form on Side of Higher Values—Bonds Firm.

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—Speculative sentiment, which has seemed to be in a state of solution during the present week, was precipitated into tangible form on the side of higher values today. Substantial advances resulted from the general disposition to buy stocks. The demand was quite varied and affected the list throughout, although there was a marked favor still shown the coalers, which have been the foremost place in market movements.

A hesitating short interest, which has been added to during the week, encouraged by the lack of response in the market to favorable developments, was an important element in the day's buying. The pronounced relaxation in the money market was the underlying ground for the advance. Funds on call were in apparent abundance and the rate did not get over 6 per cent, with the ruling rate for the day below that. The forces which have brought about this condition promise to continue active for some time to come. The consequence was to allay much of the apprehension which has been felt that no actual ease in the money market could be counted upon for the spring period.

The large projects which have been undertaken, and for which it is important that the market should show absorptive power are regarded as assurance of effective leadership in any market campaign. The estimates of the week's currency movement made it evident that a substantial inflow from the interior to New York has set in and is likely to be extended, in view of the seasonable subsidence to requirement for movement of the crops. New York appears to have received in the neighborhood of $3,000,000 in cash during the week. Side by side, with the relapse in the money market, there was a revived demand for remittance abroad through the exchange market. The fact that the rise in foreign exchange precluded the idea of an inward movement of gold, caused no disappointment in view of the obvious fact that local resources were abundant to meet maturing obligations abroad. It was inferred in foreign exchange circles that measures were being taken to anticipate future maturities and thus to reduce the volume of our obligations to foreign markets for the future. Foreign money markets themselves continued to relax.

These developments were of decisive effect on speculative sentiment. Matters which have been regarded lately with concern were lost sight of or ignored. Union Pacific was one of the strongest and most active stocks on the list, in spite of the beginning of the inquiry by the interstate commerce commission into the relations of the Harriman properties with a view to discover possible conflict with the law. There was an aggressive recovery in the Hill stocks, although the postponement of the closing of the books for subscriptions to the new stock issue was witness of the reality of the obstacle to the new issue of the state of Minnesota's legal process. The large gains in the net earnings of the Southern Pacific and the Union Pacific for November helped those stocks. Other railroad reports showed by contrast the severe effect on net earnings of the increase of operating expenses. No difficulty was found in absorbing the sales to take profits on the day and the closing tone was buoyant and very active.

Bonds were firm. Total sales par value $2,500,000.

United States bonds were unchanged on call.

WHEAT CLOSES WEAK

MARKET AFFECTED BY SHARP BREAK IN CORN.

May Delivery Reaches Lowest Point. Trading in Oats Quiet—Decline in Provisions.

CHICAGO, Jan. 4.—Announcement that shipments of wheat from Argentina during the last week aggregated 880,000 bushel against 288,000 bushel for the previous week caused a rush of selling, which carried the price of the May delivery down to 75 1-2, the lowest point for the present crop. Large northwestern receipts also had a depressing effect. After the first hour the market [illegible] the report of Bradstreet's showing a total of 4,250,000 bushels of wheat exported during the week and some moderate buying. During the last hour, however the market became weak in sympathy with a sharp break in the price of corn. The close was weak. May opened 1-8 to 1-4 lower at 78 1-2 to 75 5-8, advanced to 76, and closed at 75 1-2.

Corn after holding steady for the greater part of the day, the market became weak in the last half hour and prices declined more than 1-2. Selling, based on a liberal increase in primary receipts was chiefly responsible for the break. The total primary receipts today were 940,000 bushel. The market closed weak. May opened unchanged to a shade lower at 43 3-8 to 43 3-8@1-2, advanced to 43 3-4, and declined to 43, where it closed.

Trading in oats was quiet and prices were easier in sympathy with wheat. Commission houses and cash interests were the principal sellers, while the demand came chiefly from local bulls. May opened a shade lower at 36 1-8, sold between 36 and 36 3-8, and closed at 36.

Provisions were firm early in the day because of a five cent advance in the price of live hogs. The break in corn however resulted in moderate declines throughout the market. At the close May pork was off 7 1-2 at $16.60. Lard was down 2 1-2@5 at $9.47 1-2@9.50. Ribs were 2 1-2@5 lower at $9@9.02 1-2.

Test Plant at Lillie Shaft House Subject of Much Speculation—to Treat Low Grades.

Special to The Gazette.

CRIPPLE CREEK, Jan. 4.—Mining men generally are looking forward to the test plant now about completed at the Lillie shaft house. This test plant will only have a capacity of 25 tons daily and it has been [illegible] for the purpose of seeing if Vindicator and Findley ore of a low grade refractory rock can be treated at a profit, as it is done in Australia and South Africa. The Edwards furnace is one of the principal features. It is claimed that rock carrying $5 values can be mined and treated at a profit. The rock has to be roasted but it is further contended that ore to be had with rock that gives the values out of twenty tons of refractory rock. This is about 50 cents a tons for the treatment of each ton of rock.

The new Vindicator mill is in charge of H. A. Shipman, formerly general manager of the Stratton's Independence, Ltd, who has devoted years of study to the treatment of low grade ores. The new test plant will start this week.

WISHBONE MILL TO START

New Cyanide Plant Will Begin Operations Not Later Than Monday Next.

Special to The Gazette.

CRIPPLE CREEK, Jan. 4.—The new Wishbone cyanide mill, located about one mile north of this city on Spring creek, will start operation not later than Monday next. This mill was erected by St. Louis capitalists to treat the large quantity of low grade ore in the company's holdings on the northeast slope of Mineral hill. The mill has a capacity something over 100 tons daily. The management will not attempt to run to capacity at first, but will let the tonnage come on gradually. The company has large storage bins and there is upward of 1,000 tons of ore now in storage, which is both custom ore as well as some mined from the Wishbone property.

The Wishbone company has a contract to treat ore from the K. P. claim of the Western Union Mines company, which has recently opened up a dike from thirty to forty feet wide and, which appears to be at least 1,500 feet long. Innumerable assays taken indicate that the Western Union ore will run from $5 to $12 in gold to the ton. All of it is highly oxidized. Several streaks varying from four to twelve inches have been found in the tunnel, which give returns of from $17 to $40 in gold to the ton. The Western Union management has recently made arrangements to do extensive mining and all of the ore produced will be handled at the Wishbone plant.

HOLDS FIRST ANNUAL MEETING

Aetna Development Company to Elect Officers—Made Good Strike Recently.

Special to The Gazette.

CRIPPLE CREEK, Jan. 4.—The Aetna Development and Investment company will hold its first annual meeting in the Fairley-Lampman building next Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Considerable business will come before the directors of a detail nature. Officers are to be elected and it is probable that extensive development work will be outlined by the directors to be pursued this year.

The Aetna Development and Investment company has a five-year bond and lease on the entire holdings of the Index property on the west slope of Gold hill. The leasing company began operations last April and it has not only mined and shipped out a quantity of good ore, but during the last couple of months of the year has made one of the best and richest strikes of the entire year. At a depth of 365 feet in virgin ground an ore shoot fully eight feet wide has been uncovered and it has been followed for over fifty feet. There is a streak in the shoot which varies from one to four inches wide that carries values of nearly $1 per pound. The screenings are giving returns of about $200 per ton. Selected rock runs from $80 to $100, while the coarse rock, with but little sorting, runs two ounces.

EXAMINING OPHIR PROPERTY

Boehmer, Mining Expert Endeavoring to Determine Apex Rights.

CRIPPLE CREEK, Jan. 4.—Max Boehmer, the celebrated mining expert is in the district making a careful examination of the Raven hill Ophir property, which has been sued in the El Paso county district court for apex rights by the officers of the Jennie Sample company. Mr. Boehmer is making the examination at the request of Mrs. Anna Cone, of Canon City, who is the owner of the Ophir.

Should the Jennie Sample company win, there will undoubtedly be a consolidation of properties, as the Jennie Sample company owns valuable property which entirely surrounds the Ophir.

The Ophir is one of the bonanza mines of the Cripple Creek district. This property is producing every month a gross value of from $75,000 to $90,000. The ore shoot is of liberal dimension while the ore runs from $100 to $300 in gold to the ton. Taken on an average the Ophir is probably shipping out the richest ore in the camp today.

WILL SINK SHAFT DEEPER

Two Hundred Feet to Be Added to Portland Shaft.

VICTOR, Colo., Jan. 4.—The No. 1 shaft at the Portland mine, which for several years has remained at a depth of 1,000 feet because there was no necessity to sink it beyond that level, and also for the added reason that there was serious liability that a water flow at that point would increase beyond control if the shaft was sunk lower, is to be put 200 feet deeper.

The work will be started some time during the present month. Discovery of large ore shoots in a winze at a depth of 1,225 feet several hundred feet from the shaft has decided the management to connect the shaft with the deepest workings. A drift from the winze north has been driven about 125 feet, and has exposed the ore in place for the entire distance.

Several hundred feet must be driven before the drift from the bottom of the winze can be connected with the shaft, but it is expected that when the shaft has been sunk to the point stated the drift from the winze will have practically touched the shaft.

CONCERNING CLAMS.

Wide Range From Which the Supplies for New York Are Drawn.

From the New York Sun.

It is not impossible, in fact, it is not at all improbable, that the little neck clams one eats here on the half shell or the bigger clams that may be eaten cut up in chowder, came from as far away as Canada or Charleston, S. C.

Once all the clams consumed here were gathered hereabouts, but in the course of time the beds became more or less depleted; population increased along shores on which clammers had dwelt, and the clammers themselves took up other occupations, and so the local supply fell off, while with the city's constant and great growth the demand was steadily and greatly increased.

Then, some ten or fifteen years ago, when the local supply of clams was short, wholesale fish dealers here began telegraphing to their correspondents at points north or south, whence at one season and another they draw their varied and great supplies of fish for this market: "Got any clams down your way?" or, as the case might be, "Send us some clams." And at these various points people began digging clams for shipment in this market.

The supplies from one or another of these places may be more or less intermittent. At some places men may clam part of the time and oyster the rest, but from these outside sources taken altogether, the supply of clams is now large and regular. There is still a supply of local clams and still clammers hereabouts who make very good money at the work, but they can't supply the market, and now, in the wholesale fish market reports there are quoted, along with Princess Bays and other local clams, Easterners from around Cape Cod and to the eastward, and Canadas from as far north as Prince Edward Island in the Gulf of St. Lawrence, and southern clams from hundreds of miles south along our own coast and all, according to their several grades and sizes, bring good prices, with the market firm. New York eats a lot of clams.

HE WEIGHED 525 POUNDS.

Probably the heaviest man in Europe was the late Hans Fromm, of Willenberg, in Eastern Prussia, a hotelkeeper. He weighed 525 pounds. A showman in Paris once offered him a large sum, and he was willing to accept it, but he could not enter any passenger car and refused to travel in a freight car.
